

26 DAYS SAVED FOR CONGRESS

Reading and Tally Clerks Drop Formality and Get Efficiency.

ALSO LOTS OF SPEED
More Than Half-Hour Gain On Every Roll-Call At This Session.

Twenty-six and one-half legislative days have been saved in the House during the present Congress due to the adoption of a speed-up program and the efficiency of two House employees—Patrick J. Hattigan, reading clerk, and Ed J. Martin, tally clerk—in time consumed on roll calls.

The old days when time was not considered such an important factor, a roll call consumed from forty to forty-five minutes. The first step to reduce the time was taken by Hattigan when, on his own initiative, eliminated the "mistake" from each name, cutting the time down to approximately thirty minutes.

Seventeen Minutes Is Record. Not satisfied with that saving, Hattigan suggested that still further time could be saved by calling the names faster. Hattigan accordingly increased his speed, meanwhile "marveling at the quickness of Martin in making the tally," with the result that the time for making a roll call now is twenty minutes. Seventeen minutes stands as the record.

At first little time was saved because a number of the members, not having been informed of the speed-up program, took their time in coming over from the House Office Building, arriving after the roll call was completed. These late arrivals under the rules, assemble in the well of the House, obtain recognition of the Speaker and request that their votes be recorded. The first day of the time-saving program found seventy-four late arrivals grouped in the well.

Reminds School Recreations on Wet Day. Calling the roll is an arduous performance both for the tally clerk and the reading clerk. During the call the House is in a continuous uproar, resembling recreation in a country school on a stormy day. The reading clerk must make his voice heard above the uproar and the tally clerk must keep his eye strained for the answering "aye" or "no."

Call 700 Names Each Time. There are 435 members of the House, with seven seats vacant due to deaths of members. The names to be called by the reading clerk on the first call often less than half a dozen. The names called on the second call are approximately 125, and on the third call approximately 200. The total saving in time would amount to 122 hours. As five hours is considered an average legislative day, it will be seen that twenty-six and one-half days have been saved.

The natural question that arises is, how much work could be accomplished in twenty-six days given it by efficient employees?

JAP EXPERT PREDICTS DROP IN SILK PRICES

New York, May 25.—M. Schlegel, Japanese silk expert, who says that England and France today, said the price of silk will be cut in half within thirty days and will be back at pre-war figures within three months. He is at the head of Mitsui Bussan Kaisha, Ltd., of Osaka and Tokyo.

"The peak of the silk price was reached in February," said Mr. Schlegel. "The price was then $1.50 a pound. It is now $1.00. People refused to buy and there was a slump. The drop now in effect is only a beginning."

Thousands Given College By Knights of Columbus

Although full reports of the amount secured for John's College on "K. C. Day" last Sunday, have not been received, college officials are confident the day netted several thousand dollars.

The Knights of Columbus has pledged $25,000 toward the college's $150,000 building fund. Last Sunday was set aside as the day to canvass members of the order for contributions. The Knights were unable to reach all of the 5,000 members and are continuing their work this week.

Claims Dandruff Will Cause Baldness

If you have dandruff you must get rid of it quickly—it is positively dangerous and will surely ruin your hair if you don't. Dandruff is the cause of itching, brittle, scraggly hair that finally dies—new hair will not grow—then you are bald and nothing can help you.

SAFETY TILT FOR INS TRIAL

Cockrell Murder Case Featured by Quibble with Alienists.

'NORMAL MAN' SOUGHT
Doctors Testify Accused Was Legally Deficient At Time of Crime.

Dr. William A. White, superintendent of the Government Hospital for the Insane, will take the stand today and attempt to convince a jury of criminal insanity in the case of Philip Shirley Cockrell, charged with the murder of his wife, Pearl Horton Cockrell, who was found dead in the meaning of the law when he committed the alleged crime.

The trial yesterday developed into a battle between the District Attorney and Dr. John Lind and John M. Ladd, wherein long medical and technical words that had to be explained to the court and the jury were the features. Assistant District Attorney James J. O'Leary, having failed in his quest for a "normal" man or even a hint of one, made a journey into the realm of mathematics.

Questions Alienists' Sanity. O'Leary went so far as to ask the alienists themselves if they were sane.

Dr. Lind, neurologist at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, resumed the stand when court convened and repeated his statements of the day before—that he considered Cockrell legally insane at the time he is alleged to have committed the murder.

Dr. Ladd, a neuro-psychiatrist and instructor in neurology at George Washington University, the second expert witness for the defense, testified that Cockrell was legally insane at the time of the alleged crime.

Three Cardinal Evidences. The accused, he stated, suffered from the three cardinal evidences of legal insanity.

Cockrell's main defects are, Dr. Ladd stated, in apprehension, judgment and reason.

CONTINUED FROM PAGE ONE. have to submit before obtaining foreign money. But notwithstanding this possibility, Chinese progressives expect that the consortium will prove beneficial to China.

In the first place, they consider the motive of the consortium, originated and championed by Americans, as it was, to be a good one. Besides, they view it as according perfectly with China's "open door" policy.

The Chinese think that for China there is "safety in numbers." They argue that it is safer to have loans from several powers than to have loans only from one power.

In the past, Japan has been China's large lending power. Japan's disinterest has always been open to suspicion.

On this account Chinese patriots especially resent the consortium. They believe that a great deal of unscrupulous borrowing from Japan will be checked by it.

In the last two years of the war Japan loaned China about $200,000,000. The Tokyo government is charged with provoking simultaneous Sino-Japanese intrigues, designed to keep up the strife between the two nations.

Canton Government Collapsing. Just now the Canton government is reported to have practically collapsed. Advice reaching Washington indicate the grateful approach toward union of the north and south.

The board of commissioners, which constituted the temporary government at Canton, has abandoned the city. Some of the members were compelled to flee, while others left because of disagreement with the clique in control.

The commissioners, abandoning Canton, included Dr. Wu Ting Fang, who was once Chinese minister to Washington. He with Sun Yat-sen and Tang Shao Bi is now in Shanghai.

Pledging itself to play the game in the open, the consortium, it is generally felt, will indirectly do much toward healing the breach between rival factions of China's north and south. Money, it is said, will be loaned to China only for constructive purposes and not to keep this government or that government going.

The consortium's professed policy is against unscrupulous borrowing. If promises mean anything, money will not be thrown away, but China will always be asked the why and wherefore of the loan.

Railroad Construction First. There is a great deal of railroad and canal construction to be done in China. The consortium will immediately concern itself with such work.

Railroad lines already started will not be interfered with. Other lines, constructed only on paper by American, Japanese or French business interests, will be pooled. Such contracts will be handled by consortium loans. The Japanese contract for a railroad between Tsaoan and Jehol is a case in point.

Consortium information, coming here from the Far East, also carries some references to the Shantung controversy. Recent press dispatches indicated the probability of early Sino-Japanese negotiations looking toward settlement of the problem.

Such reports are characterized as absolutely false. Controlling Chinese opinion still maintains that China's right to Shantung is not negotiable.

The Chinese do not expect the Shantung matter to be touched on by the Anglo-Japanese treaty. Although the general feeling is that England will oppose any such overture on Japan's part, Peking is closely following the present Anglo-Japanese negotiations.

Early Beginners Will Have Advantage In Sharing Distribution of $23,000 Offered by Herald in Free Club Contest

Continued from page one. The best work during the first period of the campaign; that is $200 to the candidate obtaining the largest number of credits on paid subscriptions up to and including June 17, and $200 to the candidate doing the second best work during this same period.

Every person is interested in the great American art, "salesmanship." It is one of the watchwords of the business world. It is taught in schools and colleges and has often formed the subject of text books. Men and women of Washington and its environs are offered an opportunity to gain a practical training in salesmanship by joining The Herald Salesmanship Club. While getting this valuable experience they will be earning handsome awards ranging in value from the $6,000 home to a $25 cash prize.

Many Nominations. The first announcement of The Herald's offer was made late last week and already many people have called at the office and obtained free printed matter and the necessary receipt books to start an active campaign for the home or one of the splendid motor cars to be given away at the conclusion of the competition, July 17.

While the territory in which The Herald circulates is divided into eight districts, this does not mean that the members are limited to obtaining subscription credits in their respective sections or districts. Each salesman may work anywhere he chooses. The districts are to insure a more even distribution of the minor awards, there being cash awards to be given in each district, irrespective of the balloting in other districts.

The fact that every active member will win one of the sixty-three rich awards, or receive a cash commission on every dollar collected from new or old readers makes the proposition an absolute certainty for every Herald booster.

Costs Nothing to Enroll. It costs nothing to enroll as a member of the Salesmanship Club. All one has to do is to send their name and address to The Herald Salesmanship Club, 423 Eleventh street northwest. The office is open from 9 o'clock in the morning until 9 o'clock in the evening.

There is an entry blank published in every issue of The Herald and this blank is good for 5,000 credits as a starter. One may enter, however, and get credit for the 5,000 nomination ballot by simply telephoning, writing or calling at the sales manager's office. The telephone number is Main 3300.

COMMISSION TO GIVE DETAILS OF SHOOTING (Washington Herald-Cross Atlantic Service, Special Cable Dispatch.) London, May 25.—The important event of the week will be the publication of the report of Lord Hunter's commission on the shooting down of Indian natives by British troops at Amritsar, during the war. It is forecast that the commission will take the point of view that the British authorities at Amritsar faced a situation which without immediate and decisive action would have developed a mutiny as serious as the famous Sepoy outbreak.

Centers will undoubtedly be leveled at the British general, Dyer, for continuing on of firing after the mob had fled. Dyer's past record, it is believed, will argue against the assumption that he acted under panic or impulsiveness.
